

The Tyrants` Kiss

The modern play "The Tyrants' Kiss" follows the story-line of Shakespeare's Pericles. It was performed at the CBG by the White Horse Theatre on Wednesday, 8 March 2023.

Here are some reactions of class 8b:

I liked the play because at some points it was very dramatic. The story was great, and the music made it exciting. The actors were very friendly, and we could ask questions about the play - that was great!

The play was great. There were so many stage properties, and the actors did an excellent job!

The actors were very friendly after the show, and they answered every question. It was easy to follow and easy to understand. The actors were really good, and costumes were professional.

In my opinion it was a great performance. All the actors were friendly, and we could easily understand them even without microphones.

Perry was my favourite person because he had a really interesting and important character. He always brought action to the theatre.

I really liked the play because I think the actors did a really good performance. My favourite character was Perry because the actor performed very well.

I liked the play because the ladder was always there in every scene. Sometimes it was a boat and in another scene it was a prison.

I liked how they used the music in different scenes. It was getting louder and more dramatic if there was a very exciting scene. The music marked time changes or helped to show that you are in a different country now.

I liked the play because there are many characters but only four actors.

Perry is my favourite character, because it is a nice role and he is the main character. I can recommend the play to all people who like drama.
